As we embrace 2024, here is a look back at December (and late November)

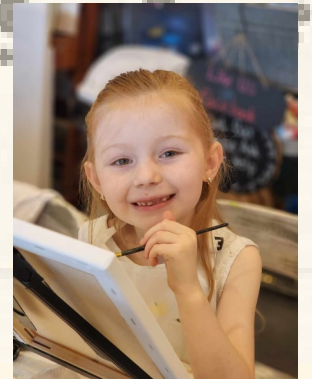

We had an impromptu grandchildren's day with three different grandmother's. There was earring making and painting! It was quite a day!

We had a HUGE turnout for Wet Willie's paint night with nineteen people attending! The food was good, service was great and daiquiri bar was chill. Leeza helped to keep the paint flowing and the brush strokes going in the right direction! We hope you'll join us one of these times at Wet Willie's!

Happy 7th Birthday Cece! Holy Cow! Look at all those kids! What a fun day.

We made some oyster shell ornaments in December at Wet Willie's. We had a smaller turnout than usual, but we had fun creating ornaments, making new friends, and enjoying great food and daiquiri

We had a nice intimate paint and sip at Bricks On Boundary in December. As you can see, their paintings were fantastic! I am so impressed by how this group did. The staff was great as was the food! Join us in January for some fun with mandala painting.

Rebecca organized a paint party for her neighbors! These girls are too much!

CJ brought the kids in to make Christmas ornaments! They all did such a nice job, and might I add how well-behaved they all were! I'm sure Santa was very good to them!

Sydney joined Elena in making snow globes!

Elena created this multimedia piece with watercolor and glitter on canvas.

Elena made Christmas ornaments on wood tree rounds!

Tierney and Kellen made Southern Palette part of their "official" first date. Thank you, girls. It was so much fun working with you both. I hope to see you again. ❤️

The Cook's were here from Maine visiting family and decided to take in some art!

Mandy, Annabelle, and Topper came back again this year as their annual tradition. Sarah and Connor came in to spend some time together before Christmas and do some painting.

Suzanne and Melanie are Southern Palette Art regulars, and we're not complaining. It's always a pleasure working with them. Suzanne made a SC charcuterie board or lazy Susan. I'm not sure which one it's going to be but it's lovely! Melanie hand painted dragonflies on stemless wine glasses from note cards she had. They are absolutely stunning

This is being added early because we weren't able to get it put on our January calendar, but y'all seemed interested! I think it would be fun to just do it together!!! I'll get all of the supplies and go over how to paint and "seal" the jars. I'll be painting one right along with you! The cost will cover the jar, paper, paint, overhead and a special pen. We'll need snacks and drinks, so if everyone brings something to share, I think we'll have a great time! Write down your January "Great Things" on a pad in the meantime so we can add those as well. Let's do this!

Painted "Good Things" Jars

Feb 6th 6pm-8pm

Cost $20 (covers supplies and overhead)

This February start the year with an empty jar. Each week add a note with a good thing that happened.

On New Year's Eve empty the jar and read about the amazing year you had.

Bring a snack food to share!

Southern Palette Art Studio offers a wide variety of a creative art projects.

New paintings!

My last painting of 2023. It was a struggle. My brushes needed to be replaced a while ago, and some of my paints had thickened. I also didn't go about the painting the way I wanted to. I still have things to learn.

A "temporary " addition to the Palmer family. This is Max, Sadie and Tonka's Cousin. Max belongs to my son, Ray. Max has been living with us for a few months and will be for a little bit while Ray finds a place where he can have dogs.

The IT guy made it to Australia and back! The flights were long but the reunion with family and friends (and potato cakes) was worth every minute!
